

BioMedCAS™ optimizes the admissions process for all stakeholders.

The first and only Centralized Application Service (CAS™) for biomedical sciences programs, BioMedCAS™ brings admissions offices an improved way to recruit, enroll and admit best-fit students while saving money and headcount each admissions cycle. So you can focus your efforts on building better biomedical sciences classes, Liaison offers the national platform for driving applicant volume while providing an optimized applicant experience at no cost to participating programs.

BioMedCAS offers a single application portal, which benefits applicants by:

- Streamlining the process for researching and applying to multiple programs of interest.
- Offering a modern application experience that guides them through the application process.
- Providing 24/7 access to real-time application status updates.

BioMedCAS adds your school and programs to a global education marketplace, benefiting your admissions office by:

- Driving awareness of your biomedical sciences master's and PhD programs programs through a streamlined application process and communications tools that enable targeted, personalized communications to those interested in your program.
- Decreasing time to decision by providing a processing team as an extension of your staff, scanning of transcripts and packaging application components.
- Providing insight into enrollment trends and performance on your campus through robust analytics tools.

BioMedCAS benefits the biomedical sciences discipline as a whole by:

- Collecting and delivering consistent, actionable data about national, discipline-wide enrollment and recruitment trends.
- Facilitating enrollment projections to help guide creation of data-driven recruitment strategies.
- Creating an opportunity to share best practices for building a better biomedical sciences class, and ultimately a better workforce.
